Habits shape our actions, perceptions, and ultimately our destinies. For women, societal expectations, gender norms, and internalized beliefs often reinforce certain behaviors that hinder advancement. These habits are frequently rooted in fear, self-doubt, or the desire for approval. Recognizing these patterns is the first step toward change. Once identified, women can employ targeted strategies to dismantle these barriers, fostering resilience and authentic growth.

The Twelve Habits Holding Women Back

Based on insights from "How Women Rise" by Sally Helgesen and Marshall Goldsmith, these habits are common pitfalls that women often encounter on their path to leadership and success. Each habit is explored below with detailed explanations and actionable advice.

How to Break It:

- Practice "achievement journaling" to consciously acknowledge successes.
- Develop a concise, confident "elevator pitch" that highlights your accomplishments.
- Share successes with mentors, peers, and supervisors to ensure they are acknowledged.

- Set realistic standards and accept that imperfection is part of the human experience.
- Celebrate small wins to build confidence and resilience.
- Practice self-compassion and challenge inner critical voices.

3. Overvaluing Expertise and Underestimating the Power of Relationships

- Engage in active listening and show genuine interest in colleagues' perspectives.
- Recognize that leadership is often as much about influence and relationships as skills.

Impact: This self-centered approach may limit collaboration and diminish perceived leadership qualities.

How to Break It:

- Shift focus to team success and collective goals.
